- Lowers Cost, Increases Consumer Access to Quality Medical Care -

San Francisco, CA January 27, 2006: QuickHealth, Inc. announced today the launch of San Francisco's first retail health care store. This new concept makes quality medical care and access to affordable prescription drugs available to the public in a more convenient and affordable manner than traditional doctor's offices or urgent care centers. The San Francisco QuickHealth store is located inside Farmacia Remedios at 2400 Mission Street, San Francisco 94110. The telephone number is 415-643-6162.

"With 6.6 Million Californians going without health insurance, and millions more concerned about the rapidly rising cost of health care, it's our pleasure to provide the people of San Francisco with a new way to access quality medical care delivered by a physician at a price they can afford to pay," said Dave Mandelkern, president and CEO of QuickHealth.

QuickHealth manages low-cost, affordable doctor's offices where quality medical care for the whole family is convenient, accessible, and consumer-driven in a friendly, retail environment. A licensed medical doctor is on site as are in-store diagnostic and lab tests. QuickHealth doctors typically treat routine family medical problems such as earaches, fever, a sore throat; provide school, sports, or employment physicals; a broad range of immunizations including flu, tetanus, or hepatitis shots, and a wide array of diagnostic lab tests including pregnancy, liver function, and cholesterol checks. Minor injuries (such as sprains, rashes, or insect bites) are also treated. QuickHealth stores are not emergency rooms or trauma facilities.

QuickHealth is open seven days a week, from 9AM to 7PM Monday through Saturday, and 10AM to 6PM on Sunday. Customers drop in to QuickHealth stores at their convenience; no appointment is necessary. Services are delivered in both Spanish and English by a bilingual staff.

"We are excited that QuickHealth has chosen Farmacia Remedios for its first San Francisco location," said Ben Singer, president of Farmacia Remedios. "The Hispanic community, our customer, has a pressing need for access to medical care, and QuickHealth provides this in an affordable and convenient manner."

The QuickHealth business model takes the mystery out of the cost of health care and puts consumers in control by telling them up front how much everything costs. Upon entering a QuickHealth store, customers see a menu board that clearly spells out the prices of the most commonly requested services. A standard visit with the doctor costs just $39.00; lab tests and immunizations start at just $19.00. QuickHealth is able to dramatically reduce the cost of medical care to consumers by eliminating costly overhead such as billing and insurance reimbursement departments, and by investing in cost-saving technology such as electronic medical record software and in-store diagnostic lab equipment.

In order to keep costs low for both insured and uninsured customers, no health insurance is necessary or accepted. QuickHealth doctors take cash, checks, debit cards, and major credit cards. A receipt form is provided if customers wish to pursue insurance reimbursement on their own.

Besides reducing the cost of the primary care provider visit, another factor that is of critical importance in making health care more accessible to the uninsured and underinsured populations is lowering the cost of prescription drugs. QuickHealth has negotiated on behalf of its customers a pre-priced formulary of affordable generic drugs to treat many common illnesses such as asthma, hypertension, high cholesterol, infection, etc. This formulary has attempted to limit the total cost to the customer for a one-month supply of a drug to less than $20. With the QuickHealth program, consumers know in advance, at the time the doctor recommends a prescription drug, how much it will cost per month and whether or not they will be able to afford it. Prescriptions are filled for the customer at the nearby pharmacy of participating retail drug store chains.
